¹ Of the 53 communications majors who began in 2013 Fall, 31 (58%) graduated in 4-years from Loyola; of the 31 communications students who graduated in 4-years, 22 (42%) graduated with a degree in communications. Following this logic, of the 620 students who began in 2013 Fall, 302 graduated from the university; of the 302, 192 graduated in the department in which they began. Graduation Rates are not based upon continuous enrollment. Communications Cohort and the Overall Cohort counts are based upon graduating from the university. The Class of 2009 is not available due to Hurricanes Katrina and Rita. Loyola University did not offer a 2005 Fall semester and consequently, does not have a 2005 Fall Cohort.
